Curatorial Brief

"Historically, pandemics have forced humans to break with the past and imagine their world anew. This one is no different. It is a portal, a gateway between one world and the next."

Arundhati Roy's Pandemic is a Portal

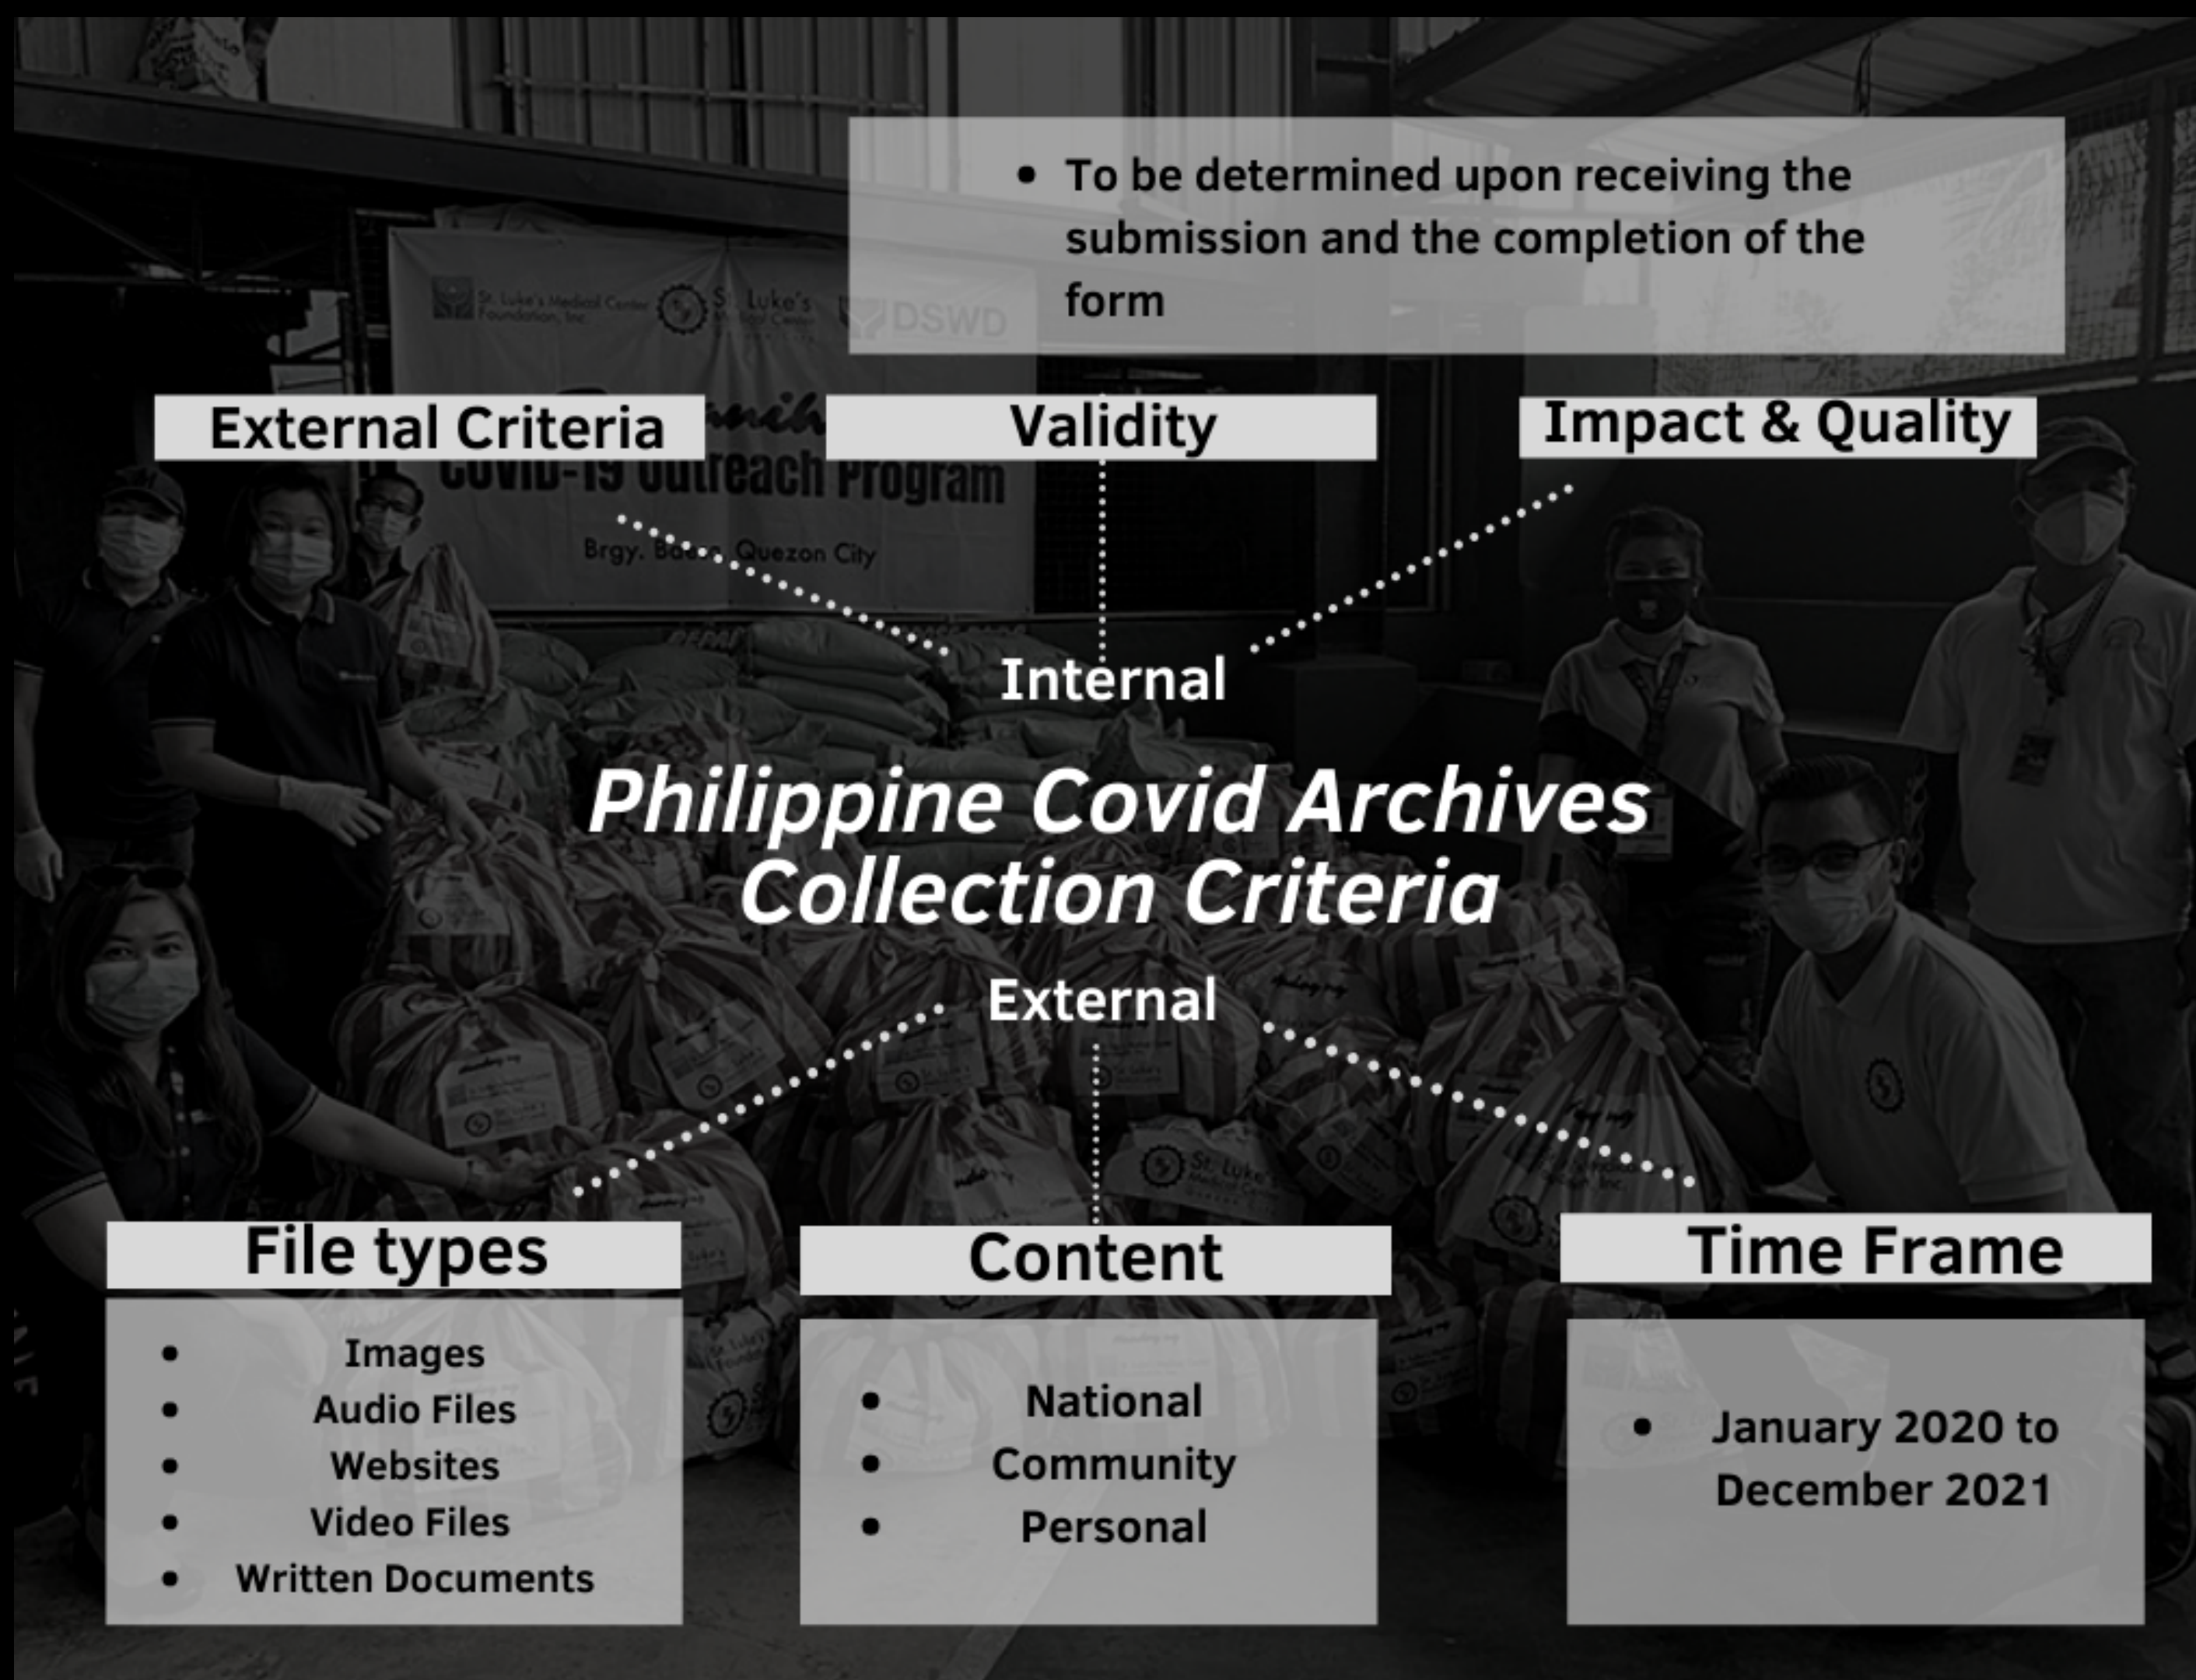

The spread of COVID-19 worldwide shocked humanity to its core. This pushes us to make slow and cautious shifts from what was perceived to be normal to new ways of doing in the future. As we transition into uncertainty, memorializing through documentation is imperative to help us remember not to forget who we are.

The Filipinas Heritage Library is collating snapshots of our quarantined lives during this pandemic: the way we cope, live, fight, protect, and help ourselves, our communities, and our countrymen in facing this crisis.

Help us collect tangible evidence of the experience and memory of the Filipino that will later provide a different perspective to any research that will come out of this pandemic era for the generations to come.

Thank You.
