

Getiye Dubale

Coronavirus

Ultimately, the Coronavirus is an extremely concerning disease. These have already been thousands of fatalities around the world.

At this time, I wisely practice social distancing, continuously wash hands, and keep myself from touching my face. Vigilance and caution are the name of the game here, so make sure, I am doing my part to keep myself safe.

The Coronavirus is a virus that is spreading fast and causing a worldwide pandemic now. Viruses are so small that it takes an electron microscope to see them. People cannot see it a virus is near them. I am learning more about the coronavirus every day. I watch the news and look for information. This pandemic can cause me to reschedule my vacation plans where I travel see my children. I am old enough to live in this world never see pandemic in my lifetime this magnitude where we live with worry and scare. I do not wish to see to my children and Grand children to leave this way worry about stepping out from my house running away from other human being that is not the live I work and live for.

I am a careful person who has taken this virous seriously since long before the radical disruption of our lives I do not see sunshine on the horizon. I wore gloves and tied bandanna around my face most of the times.

At a moment when every reality feels tragic and absurd, and there is a little hope of understanding the entirety of anything, let alone making sense of it. The best any of us can do is act with the intention and care, as we try not to lose the thread in our own lives.