A Journal of a Plague Year

Around one year ago in October of 2020 when everything moved to an online format I saw a shirt online that I thought was funny. It shows the Looney Toons characters in a “zoom” meeting. I bought the shirt because I was going to sit home all year so I thought why not. I related to the image because I usually have a cup of tea on my table next to me while in class. It is interesting that companies like Zara produced merchandize like this. In a few years if someone sees this shirt they’ll remember how we all worked and went to school for a while.
